Screen Lined Cooking School Will Show Modern Home News

News Offers Timely, Profitable Entertainment Feb. 22-23-24, at Antioch Theatre

Stream lines are a familiar sight this season.

But the latest news in Cooking School conventions, as discovered by The Antioch News has screen lines.

All of which means that long lines of eager pupils will be going to school again Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 22, 23 and 24, when this newspaper presents the much discussed motion picture course in home economics in Antioch Theatre.

Going to school in a theatre! It's a grand way to combine fun, inspiration, a neighborly reunion and valuable instruction, all in one free package. It's a grand way to get out of the rut that often threatens the best and most conscientious of home managers.

Just a fresh inspiration for the old job is one of the by-products of the familiar Cooking School, which presents a lecturer in a model kitchen, so are new ideas and keen incentive born in the film class for homemakers, with its novel approach and modern setting.

Pass Screen Test

The kitchens that passed the screen test for this picture had to meet the exacting requirements of nationally-known home economics, as well as Hollywood standards of charm, good taste and proportion.

No "false-front" camera-beautiful kitchens satisfied these specialists. They insisted on working in complete, compact, modern kitchens, which actually reflect more scientific ingenuity and careful planning than any living room.

In these practical kitchens, stream lines is no idle phrase, for this simplified, sanitary, labor-saving equipment is keyed in style and purpose to a busy age.

Recognizing the demands of home experts, Hollywood signed all-star kitchens, with all-star cast, adding a continual procession of close-ups, so that every seat in Antioch Theatre is (continued on page 5)

HIGH SCHOOL CLASSES TO VIE IN DRAMATIC TOURNEY MON. - TUES.

Eleven Plays, 65 Actors Compete for Thespian Honors

Sixty-five actors and actresses appearing in 11 plays, vying for class honors and competing individually for a chance to appear in the state-wide dramatic meet to be held in April, will be seen at the Antioch Township High school auditorium Monday and Tuesday nights, Feb. 14 and 15. The occasion is the fifth annual inter-class tournament.

The public is invited to see the performances. The low charge of ten cents for admission is expected to draw large crowds to applaud for favorite amateur thespians. Curtain time is 7:30 each evening.

Monday Night Program

"Little Prison," a comedy with a serious theme. Five performers with Betty Lu Williams as director.

"The Mayor's House," an Elizabethan comedy. Five in the cast. Janice Kapke, director.

"The Queen's Diet," a fantasy with a modern touch, with Phyllis Mount directing a cast of nine.

"They Clean the Attic," a comedy. A cast of three with Bernice Sherman directing.

"Hold That Indian," a Hollywood adventure, presented by eight students with Marvin Groebli and Harriet Goodell, directors.

"Three's a Crowd," a comedy. Five in cast. Lorraine Laursen, director.

"The Purple Doorknob," a comedy, with three in cast.

"With the Help of Pierrette," a fantasy, with Bill Peterson directing a cast of four.

The tournament is under the general direction of Mrs. Marguerite K. Phillips.

LYONS, SENATE CHOICE, OPENS ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

G. O. P. Picks Libertyville Man; 8th Dist. Fight Left Wide Open

Richard J. Lyons, ten years representative from the eighth senatorial district, today mapped an intensive campaign for the Republican nomination as United States senator after receiving the unanimous endorsement of Republican statemakers representing the party's 102 county chairmen.

With the Libertyville man's acceptance of the senatorship bid, the contest for the Republican nomination for the legislature for the 8th senatorial district today take on a new significance. With Lyons out of the race for the legislature, the campaign for the two, or three nominations which ever the senatorial committee-men of the district approve, will be a wide open battle. Already six candidates are in the field including Nick Keller of Waukegan, present member, Roy J. Stewart and Charles H. Francis, both former representatives from Woodstock, and Victor O. Siegler, of Spring Grove, who was a candidate two years ago, and two other Lake county candidates who came upon the scene this week: Harold J. Kelsey, member of the Lake county board of supervisors, and Charles Kapschull, past commander of the Illinois American Legion.

Pledges Aggressive Fight

The boom for Representative Lyons dated from his appearance before the committee late Monday where, in the most rapid-fire speech heard during a day of hearings, he promised an aggressive campaign with all the trimmings, if named by the committee.

Lyons Accepts Honor

Lyons, with his daughter, Lucille Mae, 20 years old, a sophomore at the University of Illinois at his side, immediately accepted, expressed his appreciation to the committee and dictated a statement.

"I am highly honored," he said, "by the unanimous endorsement for the office of United States senator. I will conduct a campaign for betterment of the conditions of the working man, the farmer, and the small business man, as well as the complete divorce of regimentation from all business, labor and agriculture."

"I assure the people of Illinois that they will see the most active campaign for the senatorship that has been waged by the Republican party for a generation. I assure them that it will be a campaign based upon the principle that America must retain her sovereignty in the face of world alliances looking toward war."

"Prosperous Before Theorists" Lyons has campaigned downstate in the last three elections as a member of a party accompanying state candidates, but never as a candidate. In the legislature he fostered the measure establishing the state bureau of criminal investigation and identification, and state police radio stations.

After many attacks upon the state relief administration system, he advocated the bill that reduced functions of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission to a fund allocating body.

Announce Fine Program For P.T.A. Meeting Mon.

An exceptional program for the February meeting of the Parent-Teacher association to be held at the grade school Monday night has been announced by the committee.

The speaker will be Mrs. Brutus A. McGee, of the Adult Education Council of Chicago, who will have for her subject: "Why Stop Learning?" Mrs. McGee is rated as a capable and entertaining speaker and she has an inspiring message for all adults. An added feature of this meeting will be a Founders Day program presented by the teachers including the "candle ceremony." All past presidents of the local association are especially invited.

FOOD CODE REVOLT BRINGS VIOLATORS UP FOR COURT TEST

Police Magistrate Brook to Hear Food Truck Cases February 18

Antioch's long-discussed "foreign" food truck ordinance will have its day in court here on February 18 when approximately 20 violators will be haled into the court of Police Magistrate E. E. Brook. The transgressors will be asked to show why they have been operating in defiance of law by failing to pay the $25 license fee required by the ordinance which was placed in effect last June.

The ordinance calls for a fee of $5.00 from all resident dealers in foodstuffs and a $25 fee for the operation of a truck or motor vehicle carrying food supplies and beverages for distribution to merchants and residents in Antioch. Many paid the required fees immediately after the code became effective, but the violations on the part of the "holdouts" have been so open that the village fathers began wondering when is an ordinance not an ordinance. Board members saw no justice in an ordinance only half-enforced and recently Marshal Pete Petersen was ordered to enforce the code.

Up until noon today warrants had been served on 11 truck drivers who have violated the code by making deliveries for firms who had not procured the proper license. They include: Katzmaier Beverage Co., Burlington, Wis.; Red Star Yeast Corp.; Coca-Cola Bottling Works; A&P store; Swift & Co.; Kapella Distributing Co., Erwin, Brezina; Andrew Pucin; Victor O. Siegler; Hydrox Ice Cream company; Micklebury Sausage company.

Village Attorney George McLaughlin will appear for the village and it is expected that some good legal talent will be on parade here for the defendants.

Merchants Complain

Local opinion seems to be divided regarding the worth of such an ordinance. Food dealers claim that the $25 fee has stopped small vendors who job necessary merchandise, and that they have been forced to discontinue some lines of foodstuffs, resulting in loss of business. Board members reply that many local merchants asked for the enactment of such an ordinance long before it was given consideration by the board, and that the features of the code they now object to had to be included to avoid discrimination. Similar ordinances have been upheld in the higher courts, they declare, and so long as the present code is in effect they expect to see that it is enforced.

Health Measure, Says Bartlett

Enacted primarily as a health measure, Mayor George Bartlett states that provisions made for inspections have been followed wherever there have been complaints, and in cases where unsanitary handling of foodstuffs is suspected.

The measure was designed to be of benefit to residents of the community, it has been pointed out, and in fairness to those dealers and merchants who have paid their license fees, prosecutions will be brought against all who continue to ignore the provisions of the ordinance.

There have been numerous suggestions for a satisfactory solution of the situation which has brought about the wholesale court procedure. These range from recommending a reduction in the license fees to outright repeal of the ordinance.

Legion to Organize Boy Scout Troop Here

A move to organize a Boy Scout troop here was made this week when the Boy Scout committee of the Antioch American Legion Post appointed Norbert Pacini as scoutmaster and arranged for the calling of a meeting at the Antioch high school on Monday evening, Feb. 14 at 7 o'clock. All boys in the community 12 years old or older are invited to attend this meeting.

Chest Clinics Held Each Wednesday

A chest clinic maintained by the Lake County Tuberculosis Association will be held each Wednesday morning at St. Therese hospital from 8:30 to 11 a. m. Dr. Charles K. Peter, Superintendent and Medical Director of the Lake County Tuberculosis Sanatorium, is the clinician of these clinics.

Lake County Sixth In State Motor Fees

Lake county is sixth in the amount paid the state for motor vehicle fees in 1937, according to Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes who has just released the figures of total collections in the 102 counties for 1937.

Increases which totalled $1,975,519 over the 1936 fees for the State show in the figures. The fees for the State were $20,861,020 with Cook County alone paying $9,745,116 or $155,116 in excess of the amount necessary for the payment of both principal and interest on the 60 million and 100 million dollar Highway bond issues.

Lake county shows an increase from $361,049 in 1936 to $398,605 last year. The amount of fees collected in Lake county is exceeded only by Cook, St. Clair, Peoria, Kane and Winnebago counties.

8 REPUBLICANS FILE PETITIONS FOR COUNTY JOBS

Kennedy Gets First Spot on G. O. P. Ballot for Sheriff

Headed by Chief Deputy Sheriff Thomas E. Kennedy as first in line, eight Republican aspirants for county office filed their petitions with County Clerk Russ Alford early Saturday. Up until two o'clock today no other petitions had been presented at the clerk's office.

Kennedy and his friends and other aspirants for office had kept an all-night vigil at the county building. They were first to enter the clerk's office when the business day was started at 8 o'clock. Up to this time Kennedy is the only candidate to file his nominating petition for sheriff.

Others filing, in the order they presented their petitions to Deputy County Clerks Herman L. Christensen and Gregory Sheahan, were Allen J. Nelson for probate clerk, Jay B. Morse for county clerk, William J. Stratton for county clerk, Judge Perry L. Persons for re-election, Garfield Leaf for county treasurer, and W. C. Petty for re-election as superintendent of county schools. At 11 a. m. Probate Judge Martin C. Decker also filed his nominating petition for re-election.

Several aspiring Democrats will file their petitions within the next few days, according to Deputy County Clerk Herman L. Christensen.

The withholding of Democratic petitions is reported to be due to the rift created a few days ago when party leaders headed by Dr. R. R. Bosworth, George Mayer and Joseph Mull inaugurated a move to purge Lake county of gambling in all its forms. The revolt which followed the "purification" program is said to have caused a struggle for county leadership, and aspirants have not known where to look for support.

G. O. P. CHOICE FOR U. S. SENATOR

HON. RICHARD J. LYONS

Unanimous choice of Republican committeemen for the highest office at stake in the April 12 primary election—United States senator, Lyons said he hoped his opponent would be the incumbent senator, William H. Dieterich, Beardstown Democrat, in the event he won the nomination. "I'll tear up the pavements in pointing out to the people the lack of representation they have had," Lyons said.

Mrs. H. H. Reichers and Mrs. Arthur Laursen spent Tuesday in Evanston.

HIS NAME TO BE FIRST ON BALLOT

THOS. E. KENNEDY

Chief deputy sheriff of Lake county who was first to file his petition Saturday morning. Kennedy, a Republican, and Lake County's No. 1 police officer, seeks to succeed his chief, Lawrence A. Doolittle.

DR. E. H. SMITH AGAIN HEADS CO. TB. GROUP

Mrs. Barney Trieger Re-elected Board Member at Annual Meeting

Dr. E. H. Smith of Libertyville was re-elected president of the Lake County Tuberculosis association at the annual meeting Thursday noon, February 3, at the Waukegan hotel.

Other officers elected were Dr. Theodore S. Proxmire and Mrs. Austin Niblack both of Lake Forest, vice presidents; Mrs. Girard Fossland, Winthrop Harbor, secretary and Harry A. Hall, Waukegan, treasurer.

The following board members were re-elected for a term of three years: Mrs. Barney Trieger, Mr. David Van Patten, Dr. E. H. Smith, Mrs. Austin Niblack, Mrs. Mabel McCullough, Mrs. Earl Kane, Mrs. Halbert Handelman, Mrs. Girard Fossland, and Armon J. Crawford. Also, Mrs. Harry Clark of Barrington was elected as a new member for a term of three years.

Miss Orpha L. White, executive secretary of the Lake County Tuberculosis association, reported $7089.00 had been realized from the annual Christmas Seal sale in the county to January 31, 1938. This was $215.89 short of last year's total. The work of the Lake County Tuberculosis association is financed by the proceeds from the annual Christmas Seal sale.

Dr. Charles K. Petter, superintendent and Medical Director of the Lake County Tuberculosis Sanatorium, gave a "General Discussion of the Tuberculosis Situation—Past, Present and Future." He outlined the progress in the treatment of tuberculosis from post-war days to the present hospitalization in pleasant surroundings of modern Sanatoriums, such as they are planning in Lake county. Chest surgery, now used extensively in the treatment of tuberculosis, has been known in one institution to have reduced the death rate 10 percent. Dr. Petter spoke of the co-operation he had received from the Lake County Tuberculosis association and emphasized the necessity of the Association and the Sanatorium Board working together in unity and harmony at all times to perfect the progress we wish in combatting the disease of tuberculosis.

Hold Funeral Monday For Mrs. F. Runyard

Funeral services for Mrs. Frank Runyard were held at Strang's funeral home Monday afternoon at two o'clock with the Rev. L. V. Sittler officiating. Mrs. Runyard died at her Channel Lake home Thursday, February 3, after two months illness of a heart ailment.

Alice Garwood Runyard was born in Antioch April 27, 1872, the daughter of Israel and Ann Garwood. She was married to Frank E. Runyard on April 11, 1912. She had spent her entire life in this community.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Ross J. Coan; a son, James Runyard of Channel Lake, a granddaughter, Janice Runyard; two step-daughters, Mrs. Hans Dietrich of Twin Lakes and Mrs. Harold Mickle of Billings, Montana.

Burial was in the Grass Lake cemetery.

Mrs. I. L. Hancock of Oak Park spent the week-end with Mrs. J. W. Hancock at her home north of Antioch.

STATE ENGINEER TELLS LIONS CLUB OF PARK PROJECTS

Local Lakes One of State's Greatest Natural Resources

The Chain-of-Lakes area represents one of the greatest natural resources in Illinois, and its proximity to great masses of population is not surpassed in the nation, Carter Jenkins, chief engineer of the Waterways Division of the state, told members of the Antioch Lions club and their guests at the Antioch Hotel Monday night.

The speaker was asked to come to Antioch to address a meeting of interested citizens of the community under the auspices of the Lions club, regarding the state's program for development projects in the Chain of Lakes, and particularly in this vicinity.

Engineer Jenkins made it plain that his department and the administration were in accord with local citizens in their plans for developing the area, and pointed out that through the work of the people and civic organizations in this locality more than 3,200 acres of land have been made available for public use and development.

"Steals" CCC Camp

"Already one small contract has been let for work in the vicinity of the village of Fox Lake, which will result in additions to the work started by the CCC camp borrowed from Wisconsin," Jenkins said, referring to the transfer of CCC workers from the Fox River camp in Wisconsin last year. That was while Jenkins was in the National Park Service, and it was he who pointed out the advisability of employing some of the surplus CCC labor across the line in Illinois.

"The Division of Waterways," Jenkins said, "has made elaborate studies of desirable work within the Chain of Lakes area, and has prepared approximately 12 projects, largely dredging operations, which will do much to open channels and connecting passages in and between the several lakes."

Urges Public Parks

"The estimated cost of this small program is approximately one hundred thousand dollars of which only twenty thousand dollars are at present available. Even with the full one hundred thousand dollar program there would still be many desirable features untouched. To this should be added the cost of improvements, which might be made by the Division of Parks in order to adapt lands for public use and to provide for visitors from the metropolitan region."

"The region can not hope to prosper to the highest degree unless there are publicly owned areas where general access may be gained to waters of the region, and I believe that greatest emphasis can be given to the better development of the lake region through proper advertising, by urging legislative action towards adequate appropriations, and in formulating public opinion for acquisition and development of public holdings as a state park."

Sees Water for Antioch

"Many land owners back of the meandered lands, who had color title to marsh lands, have quit-claimed them to the state. This is a great forward step which must bring returns to the locality. One of the prominent citizens of Antioch has already promised a gift of land, which together with like acts by others yet to signify their willingness, will permit the bringing of the Chain of Lakes water to the very doors of Antioch."

Engineer Jenkins advised concerted action in obtaining title to lands proposed for development, and then applying for a state appropriation to finance the project.

Assures Bridge at Klondike

Also a guest speaker at the meeting was County Highway Engineer R. L. Lobdell of Waukegan. Lobdell said all that stood in the way of constructing the bridge at Klondike was the lack of about $120,000 to complete this important project after approval of the plans had been given by the state Division of Waterways. Jenkins, head of that department, assured him that state approval would not be delayed when the plans were submitted. "The bridge will be built," Lobdell said.

Youngest Committeeman Up for Third Term

Charles Cerniak, Jr., the youngest Democratic central committeeman in Lake county, this week announced that he will be a candidate for re-election at the April 12 primary. Cerniak has served two terms as committeeman from Antioch precinct No. 2.

"Big Business"

(From the New York Daily Mirror)

"Big business" in America made the following figures possible. The figures show the number of automobiles owned per 100 persons in the following countries:

Twenty-two in the United States; eleven in Canada; five in France; two in Germany and one in Italy. Americans own and operate 70 per cent of the automobiles in the world. More than half of the American families that own automobiles have an income of only $1,500 or less.

And speaking of incomes, the average worker's income in America is $1,275; the average British worker earns $783 per year; the German worker has an annual income of only $718; the Italian gets only $239.

That is the difference in living conditions under a democracy and under a dictatorship and the difference between free private enterprise and complete government control of business.

Slowing Recovery

Washington, for several weeks past now, has been the scene of almost daily conferences designed to bring about better co-operation between government and business as a means toward lifting the Nation from a recession bog. From all indications, the talks have served to bring about a better understanding, if nothing else.

Almost to a man, every business leader invited to the Capital City to express his views on the economic problems has urged that the tax burden on business be lightened as one of the most certain means of renewing the recovery march, and that the competition of government in business with its own citizens should be curbed.

These business men know—as the government should know now—that money paid in taxes cannot be spent for wages; that the same dollar can't go into the tax bill and the pay envelope at the same time. This philosophy isn't something new to be heard around Washington—Congress had the same idea last December when it was in special session.

Everyone seems to be in accord on the matter—that stifling taxation must be ended; that tax money, if unleashed in the business field, will go a long way toward providing jobs for unemployed workers. Why, then, should there be any further delay in taking this important step toward industrial recovery?

Just Foolishness

(From the London Sphere)

The United States contains 6 percent of the World's area and 7 percent of its population. It normally consumes 48 percent of the world's coffee, 53 percent of its tin, 56 percent of its rubber; 21 percent of its sugar; 72 percent of its silk, 36 percent of its coal, 42 percent of its pig iron, 47 percent of its copper, and 69 percent of its crude petroleum.

The United States operates 60 percent of the world's telephone and telegraph facilities, owns 80 percent of the motor cars in use, operates 33 percent of the railroads. It produces 70 percent of the oil, 60 percent of the wheat and cotton, 50 percent of the copper and pig iron, and 40 percent of the lead and coal output of the globe.

The United States possesses almost $11,000,000,000 in gold, or nearly half of the world's monetary metal. It has two-thirds of civilization's banking resources. The purchasing power of the population is greater than that of 500,000,000 people in Europe and much larger than that of the more than a billion Asiatics.

Responsible leadership which cannot translate such a bulging economy into assured prosperity is destitute of capacity. But pompous statesmen, looking over the estate, solemnly declare that the methods by which it was created are all wrong, ought to be abandoned, must be discarded, that the time has come to substitute political management for individual initiative and supervision.

There is only one way to characterize that proposal; it is just damn foolishness.

Political Monkey Wrench

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, the well known economist, remarks that "probably it is true that no country stricken by a depression ever before faced a recovery problem that was so simple in its economic terms and so complex in its political terms."

Well, the lesson of it is that a dreadful mess can be made of economics when politicians turn economists.

Mr. Ickes says that 60 families rule the nation. He might subtract 59 from that number. One family seems to be running the country now and it is the same one that runs Mr. Ickes.

But It's True

HENRY BRATTLE, OF DUBLIN, IRELAND, LIVED IN ONE ROOM WITH A COW AND FOUR CHICKENS FOR A YEAR AND A HALF—DURING THAT TIME NONE OF THE OCCUPANTS LEFT THE ENCLOSURE FOR AS MUCH AS A SECOND!

MEXICAN INDIANS SCOOP UP ANTS BY THE HANDFUL, EAT THEM ALIVE, CONSIDER THE FOOD A DELICACY...

Mr. Brattle was mad at his wife, according to the Dublin police, and so he moved into a one-room cabin near his home. In addition to the livestock he took with him grain, eggs and several thousand dried fish. He milked the cow regularly, fed all his guests daily, lived quite happily, according to his own testimony afterwards.

Ill Wind Blows Food to Welfare Families

St. John, N. B.—An ill wind blew some good to hundreds of St. John relief families when the Norwegian freighter Aakre ran aground on the Brunswick coast recently. The cargo of 70,000 bushels of potatoes from the crippled vessel was dumped on the city docks. Relief officials were notified. The city poor soon appeared with carts and wheelbarrows and quickly hauled away a supply of potatoes to tide them over the winter months.

BRITISH WOMAN TO SELL MANOR GHOST

She's Not Nervous, but He Makes So Much Noise.

London.—"Haunted wardrobe—advertiser will be glad to deliver same to anybody interested, complete with ghost, which would also, no doubt, feel more at home if welcomed."

That notice in the classified columns of a London newspaper has brought to light a strange story. The advertisement was inserted by Mrs. B. Barclay, of Caterer Manor, Oxfordshire.

"The wardrobe is a large piece of furniture in walnut, with four drawers and mirrors, which I happened to pick up at a sale three years ago," she explained. "I paid only $50 for it because, though it took my fancy, there was little of artistic value in it. I put it in a guest room of my house and thought nothing more of it."

"Just about three months ago, however, some friends who were staying the week-end asked me if I could account for the strange opening and shutting of the wardrobe drawers which had kept them awake all night. The noise has since continued nightly."

"And that is not all. The figure of an elderly man, dressed in old-fashioned clothes and wearing a kind of deer-stalker cap, now walks downstairs and out of the front door every evening. I see him myself by the electric light and have tried to touch him, but he vanished in my fingers. I am not psychic, nor am I nervous, but this wretched ghost will make such a noise."

"The trouble is that I can get no one to stay at the manor. My staff gave notice, and my friends decline week-end invitations."

CONSERVING THE SABBATH FOR MAN

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:23-3:6.
GOLDEN TEXT—And He said unto them,
the Sabbath was made for man—Mark 2:27.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Holy Day.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Holy Day.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
What Shall I Do on Sunday?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Using the Sabbath for the Whole Man.

"A man's soul is in a bad state when he begins to regard man-made rites and ceremonies as things of superior importance and exalts them above the preaching of the gospel. It is a symptom of spiritual disease. There is mischief within. It is too often the recourse of an uneasy conscience. . . . No wonder St. Paul said to the Galatians, 'Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years. I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed on you labor in vain.' " These are the comments of John Charles Ryle, Lord Bishop of Liverpool, on the lesson of today.

The formalists of Christ's day, the Pharisees, had overlooked the heart of God's law and the holy living which it was intended to produce, and had bound up even the observance of the Sabbath (which was intended to be a day of rest and gladness) in such a mass of technical "thou shalt nots" that it was a day of fear. They had a false outward profession of worship and had entirely missed the true spirituality of God's law, a fact which drew upon their heads the anger and rebuke of our Lord.

While we as Christians do not observe the Jewish Sabbath, there are principles of doctrine and life bound up in this lesson concerning the Sabbath which we may with profit apply to our day of rest—the first day of the week—the resurrection day, often called "the Lord's Day."

I. False Spirituality Unmasked.

The two incidents in our lesson reveal that under the cloak of earnestly observing the law of the Sabbath the Pharisees were actually covering their own hypocrisy and their hatred for Christ.

The accusations against the disciples because they had taken and eaten grain was not on the ground that they had stolen, for the law (Deut. 23:25) guaranteed that right to the one who had passed through his neighbor's field. They contended, however, that the disciples had worked on the Sabbath in picking and hulling the grain.

The healing of the man with the withered arm revealed that back of their professed concern for the Sabbath was a real hatred for Christ. It is an appalling thing that in the house of worship on the very Sabbath day these men, outwardly so religious, were plotting against our Lord. "They watched him," and even so the enemies of the cross watch us who are his followers.

II. True Spirituality Defined.

Jesus cuts across human hypocrisy and hatred to declare that the true keeping of the Sabbath is to do the work of God. No work of necessity (like plucking the grain) or of mercy (like healing the withered arm) is ever out of place on the day of rest.

How shall we know what we may do on the Lord's Day? Two guiding principles appear in our lesson. (1) Know and follow God's Word. Note the use that Jesus made of it in verses 25 and 26. No man will misuse the Sabbath or the Lord's Day who understands God's Word and obeys it. (2) Live in accordance with the spirit of the Lord Jesus. When tradition stood in the way of the best interests of man, He broke with tradition. If He could do good on the Sabbath He did it.

A word of caution is needed, for some have sought to interpret this lesson as providing biblical ground for doing all sorts of things on their day of rest. That day is for man's good, not for his destruction. His greatest good is served by rest, worship, spiritual development, Christian fellowship, and the doing of deeds of necessity and mercy.

III. Righteous Indignation Manifested.

Our Lord rightly showed His holy anger (v. 5) against his hardhearted critics. He was the Holy One who did not permit His anger to go beyond its proper expression. Man, it must be confessed, seldom is able to control and direct even his righteous indignation. But there is such a thing as being angry without sin (Eph. 4:26), and one could sometimes wish that God's children could be moved to a holy anger against all sin and unrighteousness.

Comforting Word

This is a comforting word of Scripture which presents Christ as a shepherd whose sheep had strayed.

God's Grace

Think what the grace of God is like. Grace is love loving the unlovely.

The Conqueror

He who conquered doubt and fear has conquered failure.—James Allen.

TREVOR

Joseph Fox, Brass Ball, was in Trevor Tuesday and Wednesday collecting taxes.

Mrs. Ed Yopp returned home Tuesday from Memorial hospital, Burlington, and is nicely recovering from a goiter operation.

On account of the inclement weather there were only about half as many as usual in attendance at the old time dance at Social Center hall on Saturday evening. There will be another old and new time dance at the hall in two weeks sponsored by Charles Curtiss of Kenosha.

Dr. Becker, Silver Lake, made a professional call in Trevor Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Charles Oetting entertained her card club of three tables on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Joseph Smith will be hostess to the club this week Wednesday.

Visitors at the A. J. Baethke home on Wednesday afternoon were their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baethke and the latter's mother, Mrs. Mary Parks, of Antioch.

Mrs. Anna McKay and niece, Miss Ruth Thornton, were Kenosha visitors Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Theron Hollister were Kenosha visitors Thursday. Rev. E. Kistler, Salem, called at the Patrick sisters' home Sunday evening.

The Misses May Fleming and Doris Kenzler, Burlington, spent the weekend with the former's brother, Elmer Fleming and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fleming and children attended the tenth wedding anniversary surprise reception of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleming at Kansasville, Wis., on Sunday afternoon and evening.

A number from Trevor and vicinity attended the P. T. A. card party and dance at the Wilmot gymnasium on Saturday evening sponsored by the Mothers Club.

Mrs. Luanah Patrick and son, Milton Patrick, were Salem and Antioch callers Saturday afternoon.

Charles Curtiss and friends from Kenosha were Trevor callers Thursday.

Mrs. Charles Thornton, North Fond du Lac, Wis., who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Norman in Antioch, with her sister, Virginia Norman, visited her sister-in-law, Ruth Thornton, on Thursday. William Mecklenburg shipped a carload of fat lambs to Chicago stock yards, Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Boersma, Jr. were Kenosha visitors Thursday evening.

Several from Trevor and vicinity attended the Rotinour show at Antioch Thursday evening.

Seventy head of fat cattle were shipped to the Chicago stock yards Thursday evening. They have been on feed at the Trevor stock yards.

Fritz Oetting, Berwyn, Ill., spent over the week-end with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oetting.

Two more cases of chicken pox were reported to the health officer, Dr. Becker, of Silver Lake, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dahl and son, Johnnie, motored to Racine Sunday, where they spent the day with their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Beck.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Northfield, Waukegan, Ill., were Sunday afternoon and evening visitors at the Charles Oetting home.

Arthur Runyard and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Runyard and daughter, Mrs. Russell Longman, and Mrs. Nellie Runyard attended funeral services for the former's brother's wife, Mrs. Frank Runyard, at the Strang funeral home in Antioch Monday afternoon, with burial at the Grass Lake cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. William Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elfers were Sunday dinner guests of the former's daughter, Mrs. George Rohnow and family, Kenosha.

Gerald Runyard returned to his school duties at Madison Sunday.

The Willing Workers met with Mrs. Joseph Horton on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Harry Lubeno will be hostess to the society in two weeks.

Sunday visitors at the Albert Weinholz home were Ben Kasten and lady friend, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kasten and Mr. and Mrs. Weaver, all of Kenosha.

"Bloody Hand" Coat of Arms

The "bloody hand" or "red hand" of Ulster forms part of the coat of arms of the former province, now Northern Ireland. It is supposed to commemorate the daring of O'Neale, a bold adventurer, who vowed to be the first to touch the shore of Ireland. Finding the boat in which he was cowed outstripped by others, he cut off his hand and flung it to shore, to touch it before those in advance could land. When James I forfeited the O'Neale estates in 1611 and created 200 new baronets on payment of a thousand pounds each, ostensibly for the "amelioration of Ulster," he allowed them to place on their coat armor the "open red hand," up to that time borne by the O'Neales.

MT. Illimani in Andes

Arching proudly upward in the Andes chain, Mt. Illimani has been termed "unsurpassed for its imposing grandeur and varied aspects." It rises about 22,000 feet, is one of the dozen highest South American peaks.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bonner, Lyman and Beryl Bonner drove to Urbana on Sunday to call on their daughter, Miss Geraldine, who is ill and in the hospital there.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Grant of Chicago were callers at the O. L. Hollenbeck home Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. George Edwards, Mrs. Robert Erwin and Mrs. Roy Edwards of Waukegan called at the Frank Edwards home Monday afternoon.

Miss Helen Bauman, who is in training at St. Therese Hospital, spent the week-end with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson were guests for dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lossman in Waukegan.

Rev. Linden was a guest for dinner at the Eric Anderson home Sunday.

Miss Thelma Clark is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

Miss Vivien Bonner and Leslie Bonner attended the funeral services for their cousin, James Anderson, held at the Presbyterian church in Lake Forest Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. O. L. Hollenbeck is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Andrew Grant, of Chicago.

The Christian Endeavor business meeting and social time will be held at the Lewis Bauman home Friday evening.

Hickory Unit of Home Bureau will meet at the home of Mrs. E. A. Martin Thursday afternoon, Feb. 17. The lesson on pastry will be given by Mrs. O. L. Raether and Mrs. George Vose.

"J. B." In Western Drama at Crystal Next Thursday Eve.

The J. B. Rotnour Players continue to draw capacity houses with each Thursday night's appearance at the Crystal theatre. Many had to be turned away last Thursday when the company presented "The Old Grouch."

Tonight the play will be "The Family Goat," which Mr. Rotnour says is a drowsy and classy play with lots of comedy. Next Thursday the attraction will be a western drama, "Where the Trail Begins," a swift moving play with colorful characters and western comedy that is different. Get merchant's free tickets from firms listed in the Crystal ad.

The Warren Township High school band will be heard in concert at the Grayslake school auditorium tomorrow night, under the sponsorship of the Grayslake Citizens' association. The public is invited.

Sequoits Face Gruelling Schedule on Last Lap of Conference Season

The final games of the home basketball schedule will be played this week. Antioch will be plenty busy when they entertain Grant Friday night and Warren Saturday night. These are two of the closest rivals of A. T. H. S. and there will be plenty of action.

Antioch split with Warren last Friday night. The light-weights won and the heavies lost by 3 points. At an early season game, A. T. H. S. heavies won from Grant while the lights lost. Anything can happen on these two nights.

The district tournament will again be held at Wauconda Feb. 23-26. Antioch won the championship last year, and will have to defend her laurels at this time. Antioch plays the winner of the Grant-Richmond game.

Students, Teachers Enjoy Theatre Party

A group of sixteen high school students and five teachers attended a performance of "Victoria Regina," with Helen Hayes, at the Erlanger Theatre in Chicago Wednesday evening. Before the theatre, they dined at the music of Louis Panico's orchestra. A very enjoyable time was had by all.

Those who went were: Betty Grimes, Wendell Nelson, Virginia Ames, George Hawkins, Lorraine Pape, Charles Hawkins, Phyllis Mount, Dale Smith, Robert White, Dale Kistler, Wilson E. King, Betty Lu Williams, Arlene Krahn, Vonnice Jensen, Robert Dressel, Parker Hazen, Miss Ayleen Wilson, Miss Esther Fledderjohn, Miss Helen Olson, Mrs. M. K. Phillips, Miss Cornelia Roberts.

"Barbary Apes" Tailless, "Barbary apes" live entirely on the ground. But that doesn't mean they are not good climbers. They're among the best, scampering surefootedly up and down rocks, never singly but always in droves. Though called apes, they are really monkeys of the type that roams North Africa.

a good seat for this amazingly pictured household course.

Sparkling Humor

The class isn't all work, for there is a constant play of sparkling humor, the appeal of tender romance, and the suspense of a coherent, intelligently directed story, which dramatizes everyday happenings—the human sort of things that really do happen.

Binding the attractive story together is the romance of home-making, a subject that holds the interest of every woman young and old. Even the Antioch News knows that all women—brides, business types and experienced housekeepers, respond to the fascination of looking in on another woman, when she is at work in the kitchen.

Particularly do they like it when they are allowed to sit quietly and watch her prepare some dish, in which she specializes. They know that if they watch closely, while she measures and mixes and completes the entire cooking operation, this closeup personal study will be more helpful than hours of reading recipes or blind experimenting.

Free Recipes

Not only does every person in the audience share this close-up of each stage of the actual preparation, but the kitchen expert clearly explains her methods, so that the measurements on the free daily recipe sheets will make it possible to duplicate that feathery cake and flaky pastry.

Chatting in true neighborly style with her listeners in Antioch Theatre, the presiding home manager will pass on her own discoveries in labor-saving short cuts. There will be dozens of helpful hints and suggestions for utilizing valuable kitchen products and labor-saving equipment.

Busy women will thrill to the convenience of one-dish meals and economy in marketing and cooking possible through full use of the electric refrigerator.

Beauty Secrets, Too

Other homemakers may find special interest in the thorough screen study of laundry methods. French frying will be considered. There will be simple thrifty meals, party and late supper dishes and guidance to entertaining with confidence. Even beauty secrets so dear to every feminine heart, will not be overlooked.

Worried questions, put by the bride-pupil in this screen romance, are bound to solve many a problem for more experienced housekeepers. Peer into the mixing bowl with her and see how it's all done, or join her in a study of the wonders of frozen desserts and molded ice box salads that taste even better than they look.

Free recipe sheets will be distributed daily, to that the inspiration of the new recipes can be carried home accurately.

Famous Specialists Co-operate

Although it won't be possible to lift those tantalizing culinary triumphs out of the picture, there will be plenty of daily gift bundles at this profitable 1938 school. Participating firms and merchants who are cooperating with The News are:

Lever Brothers Co.; Pillsbury Flour Mills Co.; Fruit Dispatch Co.; Knox Gelatine Co.; Thomas J. Lipton Co.; Robertshaw Thermostat Co.; Dodge Automobile Co.; Frigidaire Corporation.

No one interested in home problems can afford to miss The News' free Cooking School, starting Tuesday, February 22, and continuing through Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 23 and 24, in Antioch Theatre.

HEADACHES MAY BE DUE TO DIET

Doctor Explains His Theory About Food Allergy.

By EDITH M. BARBER

Modes and Manners

Q. Is it correct for a girl to accompany a fellow when he buys an engagement ring?

A. Certainly, unless he wants to surprise her with it. It is much better, however, to have the girl along to help select it unless the man happens to know exactly what she wants in the way of a ring.

Q. How should hot breads be served?

A. They should be served on a bread plate folded in a napkin.

Q. How should a woman introduce her husband to another woman? Should she call him "Mr. Smith" or "My husband"?

A. The correct form is "Mrs. Walsh, may I introduce my husband to you?" It is not necessary to give the name, the assumption being that the friend or acquaintance already knows your name. Always, when introducing a husband, a wife, a sister, a son or daughter, it is better to speak of him as such to establish the relationship.

Try These Short Cuts

Cheese is one of the best accompaniments to salad. When it is not served as part of the salad, either in the dressing or in balls at the side of the salad plate, it may be served on crackers. Sprinkle cheese over crackers and then brown in a hot oven.

The fumes of onions are prevented from rising if the onions are peeled under water.

Put a spoon in a glass before pouring hot water into it and you prevent its cracking.

Squeaking doors are easily remedied. Simply oil the hinges until the squeak disappears. A few drops generally will do the trick.

A can of asparagus should be opened at the bottom so that the ends may be removed without breaking the soft tips.

A thin coating of white of egg spread over the top of the under-crust of a pie will prevent its becoming soggy.

A half pound of butter is exactly one cupful.

Modish, Smart Spring Suits Feature New Ideas

Resort collections are giving us a tip on spring clothes.

Here are a few details that are worth noting:

Watch for yokes that are slashed or pointed up or flapped over the pockets. They supply a surprising amount of the detail in spring suits of the "softly tailored" genre. And it is this youthful tweed suit with dressmaker detail that is expected to survive.

A yoke that mounts upward from side to center and is slashed in its ascent with a pocket equipped with flap to bring it out that much better is another one that is both pretty and feasible. This is repeated for a hip-yoke in one of the best looking reefers the model collections have brought forth.

Then, don't forget that, although the big print is expected to get most of the attention for Southern resort and between-season wear, the smaller prints capable of being used in neatly tailored costumes are expected to be wanted when spring arrives. Many of these prints will have a very new look because of the colors that are used in them. Chartreuse with the design in the brownish wine color known as burnt wine, gray with purplish blue motifs, black and gray and white pattern, black with spots of gold, fuchsia, or magenta, navy with allovers in white and one of the new light lavender-blues, are typical. Often, too, the colors are reversed, and black or navy spottings will be used on grounds in burnt orange, or golden yellow.

HARTFORD SAUCE

(For Cold Lobster or Crab)

1/2 cupful of chili sauce
1 cupful of mayonnaise
2 teaspoonfuls, or more, of curry powder

Mix the chili sauce with the mayonnaise and beat in the curry powder, using as much as is acceptable to you. A larger rather than a smaller amount of curry powder gives the sauce its special savor for cold-fish dishes.

Accent Your Dress

Large rectangular and triangular clips of rhinestones, baguettes or jewel-tone sets are seen at high necklines of dark afternoon frocks.

Shirring Popular

Shirring forms an ornamental design at the front of the blouse of a black satin evening gown at Lucien Lelong, with fullness in the skirt cascading from the waistline trim.

Household Hints

The flavor of hot cocoa or chocolate may be improved by adding one-fourth teaspoon of vanilla to each cup of milk.

To allow for shrinkage, pastry dough should be rolled out one inch larger than the pan used for baking.

Color is best preserved in cooked apples by limiting the time of cooking to as short a period as possible.

To prevent scorching, iron dampened ribbons between tissue paper. Rice pudding is delicious when made with coffee instead of milk.

Fireproofing Fabrics May Be Done at Home

By a simple, inexpensive home process, fabrics used for clothing and household furnishings can be fireproofed. The fireproofing agent is a colorless liquid, a solution of seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid in two quarts of water. This treatment, says Dr. Martin Leatherman of the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, will not protect fabrics from injury by flame or intense heat, but it will prevent them from bursting into flame and spreading fires.

Fabrics fireproofed with this solution are particularly desirable for curtains and hangings which are likely to be blown against lamps or candles; for the coverings of ironing boards; for rugs near fireplaces and even for children's play suits. The borax-boric acid treatment is applied by dipping the fabrics in the solution until they are thoroughly saturated. Then wring out the excess and allow them to dry. Treated fabrics may be ironed just before they are dry.

Articles that are exposed to the weather or are laundered must be re-fireproofed. But the treatment does not affect textile colors or injure the fabric, so the process may be repeated frequently. In the case of rugs and upholstered articles, the solution may be applied by sprinkling or spraying.

Prison Custom Not New

"Chumming-up" may look like a modern phrase, but 100 years ago it was common in English prisons. Newly-arrived prisoners were beaten by their fellow-inmates with sticks and staves until they chummed-up, or donated a certain sum of money to their fellows.

Lifebelts were first made by Englishman John Edwards in 1805. They really were not perfected for more than 90 years. In more recent times, cork was eliminated from some belts. In its place "kapok," a cotton-like fiber from an East Indian tree was used. This is lighter than cork.

TESTED RECIPES

Frozen Crab-Meat Cocktail.

1 teaspoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1 cup flaked crab meat
4 tablespoons ketchup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon seasoning sauce
1/4 cup French dressing
1/2 teaspoon salt

Soak the gelatin in cold water for five minutes and dissolve over hot water. Add the other ingredients and turn into refrigerator tray to freeze two to three hours. Serve in chilled cups and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Bavarian Cream.

1 1/4 cups milk
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons sugar
Salt
1 1/4 tablespoons granulated gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
2 egg whites
1/2 pint cream
3 tablespoons powdered sugar
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
Scald milk and add gradually to egg yolks, slightly beaten and mixed with sugar and salt. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens, then add gelatin which has been soaked in the cold water. Strain and add the egg whites, beaten until stiff. Cool and when mixture begins to thicken, fold in whipped cream, sugar and vanilla. Mold and chill. Serve with crushed fruit, cream or chocolate sauce.

Creamed Cabbage With Ham.

1 medium head cabbage
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
Nutmeg
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 cups milk
1 cup minced ham
Shred cabbage and boil in salted water five to eight minutes. Melt butter, stir in flour and seasonings and when well blended stir in milk. Stir over a low fire until smooth and thick. Add ham and combine with drained cabbage. Place in greased casserole and set under broiling flame for a few moments until light brown.

Fried Clams.

1 pint clams
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
Salt, pepper
Clean clams. Drain and chop. Beat eggs until light, stir in milk alternately with the flour which has been mixed and sifted with the baking powder. Stir in clams and seasonings. Drop by spoonfuls into deep hot fat, 350 degrees Fahrenheit and cook until golden brown. Drain on soft paper and serve at once.

A New Tea Sandwich.

1/2 cupful of coconut
1/2 cupful of minced pimento
1/4 cupful of horseradish
Salt
Pepper
Mayonnaise
Put the coconut through the meat grinder and mix it with the other ingredients. Spread between slices of buttered whole-wheat bread.

CHAPTER I

Bryn finished his story. Tall, lean, bronzed, he stood before the big crystal mirror hanging over the stone fireplace and examined his chin critically. It was a very nice chin, but Bryn was not in the least concerned with its likeness; he was trying to determine whether Burch had or had not nicked it infinitesimally. It seemed not. Burch had done his usual perfect job.

Tubby, his eyes round and distracted, dropped into one of the deep morocco armchairs and stared out at the dusk. It was pouring like smoke across the bay, sifting through the Golden Gate to blot out the sunset. The daily fleet of fishing vessels, their sails a row of tiny dark triangles against the dimming face of the sun, slipped out once more to brave the waves of the vast deep. Below the house the waves lapped idly at the white cliff, gentle and harmless.

Tubby was not a philosopher, and he had very little imagination. To Tubby a horse was a horse, usually with four legs and a tail. It was not something over which kingdoms might be lost or with which princesses might be rescued. Waves to Tubby were waves, always wet and often chilly. But now, as he stared down through the wide plate glass window, there was a look of positive inspiration on his face, as if he were telling himself that these waves, at least, might sometimes wash the shores of China, the far, far, dangerous shores of China; that these waves might easily, small and tender though they now appeared, might easily puff and swell and lift themselves to fall with thunder and fury on one of the innocent little vessels drifting now so serenely past the sun. Life was like that, Tubby was convinced.

Tubby put his head down into his hands and groaned. It sounded like a stage groan, although he was certainly sincere about it; and even if it was not his situation, which it wasn't, he felt that someone ought to react to it properly.

"Nonsense," Bryn said briskly. Tubby looked up. His pink cheeks sagged. His mouth drooped. He would have been the picture of dejection if his yellow hair had not insisted on standing on end. But he thought he was the picture of extreme dejection.

"Look here, Bryn," he said in a woe-begone voice, "you can't go through with it. I won't let you. That's final." "Tut-tut," Bryn responded amiably. He pressed a bell on the mantelpiece. Burch, bland and serene, opened the door noiselessly. Bryn looked at him in the mirror.

"A cocktail, Burch, for Mr. Forbes. Perhaps you might put a little peppermint in it. He is a little upset." The faint shadow of a smile hovered over Burch's impassive lips. "And for yourself, sir?"

"Thank you, no. By the way, Burch, I am being married this evening."

There was a moment of dead stillness as if even the waves had halted in their irresistible course. Then Burch swallowed, and said nobly, "Indeed, sir? Do you wish me to procure a maid-servant, sir?"

Bryn looked up, startled. "A maid-servant? Do we need a maid-servant?" "I was thinking of your wife, sir."

"My wife?" Bryn repeated, his eyes coming sharply to Burch's face. Then, "Ah . . . no. She will not be coming here."

"Very good, sir. What shall I pack?" Bryn looked down at the gray suit with which Tubby had insisted, he was desecrating the evening. He considered. "Well, shirts and things. Nothing else, except those old golf trousers I got so much mud on at Tahoe."

"Yes, sir. Nothing else? No guns? No fishing tackle? No golf clubs?"

"Nothing. By the way—I am a young engineer out of work because of the depression. Anything a young engineer out of work because of the depression wouldn't have, I wouldn't have. I've pawned it."

Burch drew a noticeable deep breath. "Very good, sir. Shall you be here to breakfast?"

"Certainly."

"And . . ."

"No, I said she wasn't coming."

"Ah . . . yes, sir. Lunch?"

"No lunch. I shall be leaving immediately after breakfast, and you needn't prepare dinner until approximately a year from tonight. I will tell you know. I shall be away during that time."

"Yes, sir. And the orders for Morton?"

Bryn swung round from the glass. He regarded Burch thoughtfully. "That's so," he said meditatively. "I might have forgotten. Tell Morton to take a spanner, will you, and remove the paint—not all of it, but large, uneven portions—from the Bellaire. Tell him to take a chisel and give it some nice deep scratches. Tell him to make it look like a car. I might have bought for about forty-two dollars and fifty cents from a bankrupt gangster. He might bash up the fenders, and if anything further occurs to him . . ."

"The Bellaire, sir? The new French motor? The black car?"

"All of those things," Bryn said calmly.

Tubby stood up. His eyes rested on Burch's agitated countenance. He drew a deep breath.

"That's all," Bryn said crisply. "Yes, sir," Burch muttered despondently, and went out.

Tubby was staring at Bryn. "Anybody would think you were in love with the girl," he said.

"Would they? How nice. It sounds so much better. So much more romantic and idyllic. To be in love with one's bride instead of marrying her for her money."

"Money!" Tubby said bitterly. "Money!" He shook his head miserably. "You're making some kind of a d—n fool out of yourself, Bryn. You're letting some gang pull a fast one on you, that's what you're doing. Do you think for a minute that that girl doesn't know who you are?"

"She doesn't," Bryn said calmly. Tubby snorted. "That's a bright remark, isn't it? Very bright. Now, I ask you, how in God's name could anybody on the Pacific coast help having seen your ugly mug in the papers, how could anybody who can read help knowing about James Weldon Shipley Brynldson Third and his speed boats and his elephant tusks and his seven cars and his polo ponies?"

"I'm sure she can read," Bryn replied, unruffled. "The first time I saw her she was reading over a lot of legal documents up in Holworthy's office."

Tubby eyed him for a long moment. Then he said gustily, "Look here, Bryn. Did it ever occur to you that Ted Holworthy himself might be engineering this beautiful mix-up? Did it?"

"I can't say that it did."

"All this talking he's been doing about her. What did he tell you about her for in the first place? Oh, I know

"Did It Ever Occur to You That Ted Holworthy Might Be Engineering This Beautiful Mix-up?"

he said it was an interesting case, but that was just to get you listening. And now he's gone away just when she puts in her appearance. It all looks pretty funny to me."

"Didn't you think it was an interesting case, Tubby?"

"Well, if it was a case, yes. Certainly. Of course. I thought myself it was interesting. But you notice I didn't get all wrought up about it and start hanging around to get a look at the girl, and even if I had I wouldn't even dream of stepping into a game like this and marrying her myself."

"Neither did I," Bryn said. "I never dreamed of such a thing. But I was curious, I'll admit that. You haven't any curiosity because you haven't got any imagination. If you had, you'd have been hanging around, too. You'd have wanted to look at the man in the case, when he arrived for this wedding to a girl he'd never seen, and then when you saw the man you'd certainly have wanted to get a look at the girl, and when you saw the girl . . ."

Bryn paused. Tubby looked at him curiously, but Bryn coughed and went on immediately. "When you saw the girl you would most assuredly have wanted to know how it was all going to come out. She . . . well, she wasn't his type, Tub."

"You're saying just what I've been trying to say," Tubby cried. "Holworthy's been working on your imagination. He knows what you're like. Well, it's succeeded. Everything's gone according to plan. You're roped. To-night you're going to marry this girl that you've only seen three times, a girl you don't really know a darn thing about, just because she has some kind of cock-and-bull story about having to get married before her twenty-first birthday and the man she's supposed to marry doesn't happen to take her fancy. Of course he wouldn't take her fancy with you around. Certainly he wouldn't. That's what it's all about, you darn idiot. You, James Weldon Shipley Brynldson Third. Ye gods and little fishes, aren't there enough men on the coast who would marry her for this fifty thousand dollars she's supposed to be paying you, without you stepping into it? It's so damned absurd. What are you doing it for? Fifty thousand dollars doesn't mean anything to you! And they've got it all worked out so that there'll be plenty of publicity and trouble when you want a divorce . . . you going up into the Oregon backwoods to live with her for a year. So romantic! And she'll turn out to be a cheap little crook, but she'll be married to you all the same and entitled to a lot of your property when the break comes, and your name as well. Doesn't it sound beautiful?"

"Don't be an ass," Bryn said comfortably. "We went to school with Ted Holworthy. Anyway, I happen to know that this business is on the level, because I've known about the case for years. As a matter of fact, it was I who asked Holworthy about it last year, if you'll remember, which you probably won't. I met the old gentleman himself, Deborah's grandfather, when he was here eight years ago fixing the will up with Ted's father. It was just when I was taking over my property and spending a good deal of time in Holworthy's office. The old gentleman was a most interesting old chap, and we had several long conversations. He was intensely concerned about this will he was making, and very anxious to make sure that he was doing the right thing. The old man put the thing up to me as a hypothetical case and asked me what I thought of it. Being a young fool, I thought it sounded fine."

"So now," Tubby said, eyeing him, "when it doesn't look as if it might be so fine, you feel responsible? Is that it? Is that why you're throwing yourself away like a sack of soft potatoes?"

Bryn sighed. "I do wish you'd go and change your clothes," he said. "You can't be my best man in a white tie and tails, not when I'm wearing a lounge suit. We'd probably have another earthquake."

"And what about Pilar?"

"Pilar?"

"Pilar? Davilla? What about her?"

"Well, what about her?"

"For two years you've carted her around. She's had a smile for the last 23 months like a mouse in a cheese barrel. Everybody thinks you're going to marry her. She'll go bloozy when she hears this. Have you told her anything at all?"

"How could I tell her? I wasn't sure myself until two hours ago, when I telephoned you. I couldn't telephone her, could I? Hello, Pilar, I'm going to marry a girl in a few minutes. And there's no reason why I should. I've never asked her to marry me, or even hinted about it."

"Well, I don't have to tell her, do I?"

"That's a bright idea," Bryn said happily. "Thanks, old man. I'll do the same for you one of these days."

"What'll happen," Tubby said mischievously, "is that she'll have me marrying her myself."

"Well, that's all right," Bryn assured him. "You've always wanted to, anyway. Now, on your way, Tubby. Go and get dressed. Burch will bring you your cocktail, and lend you one of his shirts and a collar. You can wear my pants if you're careful not to take a deep breath, but I don't think you'd better try buttoning the coat. All in keeping . . . she'll think you got them second hand."

"Marry Pilar?"

"Certainly. She's just the wife for you. There's the blood of the conquistadores in Pilar. I'll take that to keep you from getting any fatter. Go on. You've only got five minutes."

Twenty-three years previously, Anne Whitaker Larned had eloped, on the morning of the day of her wedding to Courtney Graham, and had married a young man, who, had been a woman, would never have been received in the society in which the Larneds moved. The consequences were disastrous. The young man had no money, but he had expected to have a great deal when the Larneds relented and forgave their only daughter. However, he encountered unexpected difficulties with the daughter herself; for married her, she crept away from him, her heart as nearly broken as a physical organ can be broken by human unpopularity, and when her daughter was only a few days old, she died. Fortunately, the young father—who never knew that he was a father—was kicked in a vital spot by a horse, and died before he could cause any more misfortune; thus strengthening the belief of a number of people in the vengeance and justice of God.

The aged and broken grandparents took their daughter's child and also the blame for their daughter's unhappiness. If they told themselves miserably, they had guarded her well, she would never have met this handsome young scoundrel, and all would have been as they had planned. She would have married Courtney Graham, scion of an old and spotless family, and all her ways would have been ways of pleasantness and all her paths would have been paths of peace.

The Larneds were among the first people of Boston. Nowhere on their escutcheon could be found a blot, and even the ensue marks were so carefully done as to leave no trace. A perfect marriage, it would have been, but their daughter was dead, and their bitter regret was in vain. However, they still had the child, and over the mother's grave they vowed to themselves that nothing should mar this girl's life. They dedicated their remaining years to her. It seemed to them that they must creep out of the world with her, hide her, find for her a sanctuary.

They had sold the historic mansion in Boston, and with their beautiful old household goods, had gone west as far as they could go, out to the Oregon wilderness. There, in the most glorious natural surroundings, they had built a huge stone house, as like the Boston house as possible, and filled it with their treasures. They were miles from the nearest town, and cut off from all easy contact with civilization.

Here the child, Deborah, grew up, with only her grandparents and the servants for her companions. Save for one trip to Boston with her grandfather when she was eight years old, she had scarcely been off her grandfather's land. In the early years, when she was yet a small child, she went infrequently with her grandparents over the rough mountain roads to the little country town, or was perhaps allowed to accompany old Gary, their servant, on a marketing expedition; but as she grew older, and her mother's beauty began to evidence itself in her, she was kept more and more closely at home. There were quite often guests at the great house when Deborah was a child, but they were grave elderly people like her grandparents, so that she grew up completely cut off from companions of her own age and generation. She had, however, a library full of books, and three people entirely devoted to her welfare.

It must be admitted that of the three, Grandfather and grandmother, it was Gary who taught her the most interesting things. Grandfather taught her history, and science, and geography, and political economy; if he was a little vague in places it was because there are matters, of course, with which a woman need not sully her pure mind. Grandmother taught her needlework, and a number of things that made them both blush and over which they skipped as hastily as possible. But Gary—Gary told her stories of people.

"Now you'll never believe it," he would begin, "but it's a fact. I saw it with my own eyes."

"Saw what, Gary darling?" Deborah would ask delightedly, curling up her feet underneath her on the table.

"What did you see with your very own eyes?"

"It was once when I was in New York," he would begin. "I was walking down Fifth Avenue one day . . . that's a very interesting street in the world. I've been told . . . and right in front of me there was a young lady walking along all dressed up in a picture hat and feather boa two yards long, and she was crying. Crying like it kills, if you can imagine it."

Yes, there was Gary. Grandfather and grandmother kept the iron gates leading to the world locked and barred, but Gary lifted the shutters of a thousand little windows, magic casements, all of them, opening on the foam of perilous seas.

But no matter how staunchly Grandfather and grandmother kept the iron gates locked against the world, they knew that some day they would have to be opened, even if only to allow themselves to pass through, on their last journey. For many years the question of Deborah's future, when the iron gates should be opened, gave them anxious hours of discussion. She would have a fortune greater than her father's before her, since it had grown through the years. She had no relatives other than her grandparents, and to depend on the guardianship of old family friends, most of whom had never been in sympathy with Grandfather's ideas about Deborah's upbringing, was impossible. Deborah must be completely secure. So, when she was thirteen, eight years ago, Grandfather had gone away to San Francisco on a journey, and when he returned he had stopped frowning, and they told her that her future happiness was taken care of.

Courtney Graham, less than a year after the marriage of Deborah's mother, had taken unto himself a wife. For him to do so had been a blow, but after talking it over for a number of years, Grandfather and grandmother had consoled themselves by saying that of course Anne, as far as Courtney knew at the time of his marriage, was happy; that if she had been dead, Courtney would have devoted his life to mourning her loss, would have considered himself a widower. No; Courtney had been a perfect New England gentleman and he had done no wrong.

He had a son, born two months after Deborah herself. The boy's name was Stuart, and now at thirteen he was a tall handsome lad of great promise. His father and grandfather both thought that a second attempt at an alliance between the two families might prove a happy one. So it was understood that if the young people were willing, they should marry each other when they grew up.

It was here that Mr. Larned showed that his unhappy experience had not gone for nothing. He was determined to leave nothing to chance. He was determined that everything should contribute toward making the young people willing to marry each other—although, of course, there was not the slightest reason why they should not be. But he made his will, and it was a model of ingenuity. In it he said that his granddaughter Deborah should inherit the large part of his fortune, amounting to something over a million dollars in government bonds. If and only if she married Stuart Graham on or before her twenty-first birthday. On her twenty-first birthday her grandfather, if he were alive, would be eighty-five years of age. It was not likely that he would live long after that date, so the old man faced the situation squarely: if he should die before her twenty-first birthday, she and her grandmother were to live on the income from a selected list of more profitable securities chosen by him with great care; and if anything happened to prevent Deborah from marrying young Graham, then the fortune was to go to charities, but she was to have the income from the securities for life. The latter was sufficient to make her comfortable and keep her from want or poverty; but it was not sufficient to attract the attention of a scoundrelly fortune hunter such as her father had been.

The will was carefully planned and executed, and Grandfather smiled and nodded to himself whenever he thought of it. An absolute fool-proof and roguish plan, he said to his wife over and over. In her gentle way she agreed.

Grandfather had died when Deborah was just past fifteen; and things had gone quite smoothly for nearly three years longer, with Gary managing everything, the house, the business letters, the money matters. But then something strange and unexpected had happened out in the world, and Gary began to go about with a worried frown. Finally— and Deborah was eighteen then—she had made him tell her the truth.

There was something about a crash in New York, something had toppled and fallen, and their careful list of securities had collapsed into a carelessly heap which was bringing them scarcely enough to live on. Grandmother didn't know, of course. Grandmother couldn't be told anything like that. Gary had been most relieved to tell Deborah, and it had been good fun at first, to think of themselves as poor. Of course it would be only until Deborah was twenty-one, and then they would be wealthier than ever. Until Deborah was twenty-one—it had run like a thread of song through everything they did, through all the little subterfuges to keep Grandmother from knowing, through the hard work, the gardening, the building of the smoke house to cure venison and fish for the farder, the cutting down and making over of Grandmother's old clothes for Deborah, the enlarging of Grandfather's things for Gary.

And then, suddenly, Deborah was twenty and a half.

Twenty and a half, and marriage was something unknown and frightening. What was marriage? Why did a girl have to marry a man, a young man she had never seen, and . . . well, when she did marry him, what happened? Grandmother wouldn't explain. She said Stuart was a gentleman, and anything Deborah didn't quite understand, he would explain to her. But it wasn't enough. And, for the first time in her life, Deborah couldn't ask Gary. Gary knew she didn't know, and he knew she was beginning to feel terrified and cold inside about it. And his kind-old face was lined and heavy, and his eyes followed her about with misery and worry. They talked about love. Well, that was easy. Deborah loved Grandmother dearly, her sweet, fragile old face, her tender hands, her soft gentle smile. She would have done anything for Grandmother. But it wasn't like that; Grandmother had said so herself, blushing furiously. She said the love a woman had for her husband was something quite different, stronger, more wonderful.

Stuart Graham was writing to her now. He had begun when she was twenty, and over the first letter Gary had shaken his head and said it sounded very sudden, somehow; and over the second he said the fellow seemed to want to know an awful lot about what kind of investments Grandfather had left his money in. Gary had gone so far as to talk that over with Grandmother, and she had said quietly that of course the dear boy was interested, since he would so soon have control of the estate; and that the Grahams had far more money than themselves and always had. Gary couldn't suggest to her, of course, that the Grahams might not have their money any longer. He and Deborah talked it over, and Deborah had said, with those cold fingers at her heart and a smile on her lips, that it didn't matter whether Stuart had any money or not, that surely she had enough for two, and the situation was that if she didn't marry him, poor or not poor, there wouldn't be anything for any of them. The time was desperate. Gary said miserably that they wouldn't be able to pay the taxes on the only home they had, if they didn't get some money soon. So of course there was nothing to do but go through with it.

And then the very worst thing of all happened. For some reason that Grandmother couldn't understand, except that since a Graham had done it there must be a reason and a good one, Stuart had joined the navy two or three years ago. And now something had occurred, something he didn't quite explain. As a result, he was not going to be able to leave his ship by Deborah's twenty-first birthday.

For a few days, Gary and Grandmother and Deborah were thrown into a consternation; and although for a moment when his letter first came, Deborah had run out and hugged a tree for sheer joy, she had seen in no time that something had to be done. Stuart had a plan. He had gone on to explain that, fortunately enough, his ship would be with the rest of the Pacific fleet, anchored in Golden Gate harbor in San Francisco bay; and that it would be quite simple after all. Deborah could come down and meet him in San Francisco, and they could be married there.

Quite simple for Stuart, perhaps, but a most upsetting idea for Deborah and Grandmother. Obviously, if Deborah went, she must go alone; since Grandmother could not possibly go, and Gary could not possibly leave her. And Deborah had been so little in the world; she had never traveled anywhere alone. The world was a huge noisy whirling place, and she had lived always in the quiet and peace of the mountains. Still, it was only a matter of a trip to San Francisco; because, once there, she could go directly to the hotel Grandmother knew about, the hotel at which they had stayed years ago; and from the hotel she could go to Mr. Holworthy's office where Stuart would meet her. Stuart was a Graham, and a gentleman, and as soon as she met him her troubles would be over, for he would tell her everything she needed to know. This was what Grandmother assented; but outwardly Deborah assented; but to her he was really a man and a stranger, and in her heart was a deadly terror of marriage and whatever it might mean, of meeting this strange man and being with him, being alone with him.

There was nothing to be done. She had to go. She had to be married. They were in such trouble about money, she and Gary, that there was scarcely enough to buy her ticket to San Francisco, and when it came to her costume for the journey the problem was dreadful. Grandmother had forgotten about clothes for years. She was horrified when they came to contemplate Deborah's wardrobe. She wanted to write immediately to Boston and have a large selection of articles sent out, but Deborah convinced her that there was no time, and that they would have to manage with what was in the house. So they made a traveling costume from one of Grandmother's. It was quiet and reserved, although perhaps the lines were not such as a professional dressmaker would have put into it. It would serve.

The dress was made of brown cloth, very neat and plain. A hat was rather a problem, but they evolved one finally, a neat small black turban with a modest cluster of velvet pansies on one side. Grandmother said the hat was perhaps a little old-fashioned, but she said that Deborah was far too pretty to travel alone dressed too attractively. She cried when she said it, and warned Deborah again of the danger of speaking to strangers.

Grandmother sent only one other dress with Deborah; her own wedding dress. When they tried it on, it fitted perfectly. Deborah looked at herself in the glass, and then quickly back at Grandmother, with dark startled eyes.

"It's . . . it's . . ." she touched the neck.

"It is for your husband, my darling," Grandmother said gently, and Deborah's blood was cold again in her veins.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Mrs. W. F. Lasco Hostess at Shower for Newlyweds

Mrs. W. F. Lasco entertained 25 guests at a miscellaneous shower at her home west of Antioch last Saturday evening in honor of her son, Albert and wife, who have just recently announced that their marriage took place last October 22. The young couple received many useful and beautiful gifts from their friends.

The bride, before her marriage was Miss Gertrude Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Channel Lake.

Those present were: Mrs. O. E. Lock and son, Rheinold, of River Grove, Ill.; Miss Helen Romie, Oak Park; Mrs. Paul Romie and son, Loyde, Buflington, Wis.; Mrs. Otto Hanke; Mrs. William Hanke; Mrs. Roland Glassman, Paddock Lake; Mrs. Frank Lasco, Spring Grove; Mrs. Edgar Simonsen, Antioch; Mrs. Johnnie Mirocko and son, David, Pikeville; Mrs. Burnett Smith and Mrs. Ray Willett of Channel Lake; Miss Laura Hatch and Mrs. Fred Pasch.

Bunco was played with prizes going to Russell Lasco and Lucille Simonsen, and the very delightful evening was ended after the serving of lunch by the hostess.

MRS. WOOD HOSTESS TO HI-HO CLUB

Mrs. W. D. Wood entertained the members of the Grass Lake Hi-Ho club at a Valentine party at her home Wednesday afternoon. Luncheon was served at a beautifully decorated table. The centerpiece was a large red satin valentine box with ribbons extending to each guest seated at the table, and by pulling the ribbon each one received a beautiful prize valentine. Mrs. Lawrence Yopp was awarded the prize for highest score in pinochle.

Personals

Plans for the annual Washington Day Dinner-Dance to be given on Saturday night, Feb. 19, at Pasadena Gardens were being completed this week by the Antioch Post of the American Legion, sponsors of the event. Committee members report a large advance sale of tickets and indications are that the event will be well attended. A charge of fifty cents per person is being made for the dinner and dance. Tickets are on sale at Webb's store, Phillips' store and O. S. Klass.

Charles Kelly of Lake Villa called on his aunt, Mrs. Anna Kelly, Tuesday, and attended the Friendship Circle card party at the Golden hotel.

Mrs. William Phillips, who has been convalescing at the home of her brother, Al Kumpfer on Albany avenue near Logan Square in Chicago for the last four weeks, has returned to her home here and is much improved in health.

Don't forget to attend the Grass Lake P. T. A. card party Friday, February 11, at 8 p. m.

R. N. A. card party at Danish Hall, Feb. 15, at 8 o'clock; bridge, 500, pinochle and bunco. Prizes and refreshments. Tickets 25 cents.

Valentines from one cent up, at King's. We have comics, too.

Methodist Church Notes

Bro. S. E. Pollock gave the sermon last Sunday while the pastor conducted a Communion service at Lake Villa Methodist Church. The usual fine audience was present. All report a very excellent service. Thanks to Bro. Pollock. At the close of the service next Sunday morning, we will celebrate the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. At our last Communion, on Dec. 19, even fifty were served. There should be many more at this service. Every one is invited to participate regardless of age, creed, or nationality.

The Sunday School continues to increase. 121 were present last Sunday compared with 70 to 80 during the last quarter of 1937. Next Sunday an adult class is to be started which is to include all above High School age. Bro. A. H. Pierstorff is to be the teacher. If a sufficient number respond, two classes may be organized; one for the older group, and one for those who are younger. All adult members and friends of the church should enroll. The time is 9:45.

At 6:30, Tuesday, Feb. 22, there will be a Father and Son Banquet at the church. Tickets may be secured from members of the Ladies Aid Society. Every man should be present with a son. Those who have no sons should bring boys who otherwise would not have an opportunity to come. Those who have more than one son, or know of boys who have no fathers, please communicate with the pastor. We may be able to supply them with fathers.

The first of a series of combined social events and Official Board meeting was held at the church last Tuesday evening. After forty-two people had partaken of a most delightful pot-luck supper the regular monthly business meeting of the church was in order. Because of continued conflicts, the time of our regular business meeting was changed from the first Monday of each month to the second Wednesday of each month. It is hoped this may become known as Methodist Night in Antioch. During the meeting the pastor presented the matter of the immediate payment of the church debt, with a view to having it all complete before Easter. The pastor was requested to proceed to secure the money. Very liberal response was made by those present.

LAKE VILLA

Lake Villa M. E. Com. Church Sunday School.....10 A. M.
Worship Service.....11 A. M.
The Junior choir in new choir robes will make its first appearance on Sunday, Feb. 13th. This will be an important addition to the worship service, and your co-operation and presence will also help you.

I. B. Allen, Pastor.

The Official Board will meet with Mr. and Mrs. John Meyer at their home Friday evening this week. On Feb. 15 the Board will sponsor its second amateur entertainment at the school-house. If you have talent and would like to appear on this program, call or see Mrs. Hooper, telephone 119M or Mrs. Reinebach, telephone 151.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold its next regular meeting on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 16, with Mrs. Leo Barnstable at her home. Visitors are very welcome. The ladies are holding a series of "galloping" parties and are enjoying the social time with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Seeger of Lake Villa and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Slater of Grayslake were Kenosha visitors last Friday.

Misses Jean Culver, Lorraine Hooper, Bette Reinebach and Gerry Hall returned to their studies at U. of Illinois on Monday.

Mrs. Max Huber and daughter and Mrs. Emma Thayer of Antioch called on Mrs. Louisa Thayer last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Sophronia Murrie of Lake Forest spent Wednesday with Mrs. B. J. Hooper.

Mrs. Mary Miller, who has been with her son's and daughter's families in Chicago since the Christmas holidays, returned to her home here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Helm of Champaign spent a few days last week with Mr. Helm and Phyllis, and returned home Sunday afternoon.

James Kerr who spent last week in the hospital, is much improved and was able to return home Sunday.

Mrs. Louise Funk is spending a few weeks in Chicago with her daughter and family.

Mrs. J. A. Pedersen visited relatives in Chicago last Friday.

Mrs. Gertrude Perry of Antioch entertained her bridge club from Lake Villa at her home last Thursday afternoon at a bridge-luncheon.

Tony Sciacero, who is right hand man at the Peterson store, surprised his many friends last week by announcing his marriage some short time ago to Miss Rosella Nowicki of Chicago. For the present they are living with Tony's mother, but expect to live at Crooked Lake. His many friends here wish the happy couple many years of happiness together.

The fire department was called to the Andrew Wolff farm Saturday night when it was discovered that the state road truck which was stored there had taken fire, probably from faulty ignition. The tool shed where the truck was stored was partly burned, but no other building took fire.

Louis Galiger entertained the boys of his Sunday School class at a party at his home in Antioch last Saturday night following a picture show. The boys had a splendid time.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Galiger have moved to Waukegan where he is employed.

Glenn Gring, who is employed by the Public Service Co. at Northbrook, visited at the Carl Miller home Sunday.

Will and Lawayne Pester of Chicago were out on business last Saturday.

Lake Villa Elementary School Notes

Upper Room
We are decorating a box for the Valentines and we hope it will be full. We drew names so that every one would get a Valentine.

The Boy Scouts and the pupils of the school are very much delighted over the Ping Pong table Mr. Brickman just built for them. We appreciate it very much.

Monday, February 14, the upper grade room is planning a Valentine party. The children are exchanging Valentines, and are to play games. The game committee is: Raymond Bartlett, Joe Nader, Robert Hodgkins and Clarence Bennecke. The refreshment committee is: John Meyer, June Walker, John Christiansen and Phyllis Helm.

We all wish the Basketball team the best of luck so that they can win Wednesday night when they play Antioch Grade School at Antioch. Friday we had picture study on Lincoln's picture, and below it we wrote "The Gettysburg Address."

Intermediate Room
We have a large diagram of the human skeleton, in front of our room, and we are making a study of it now. We have a Luma moth in a glass cage in the back of our room.

We are having much fun from our Valentine contest, and it is progressing rapidly.

Primary Room
Bill Hucker and Ronnie Walker both had a birthday last week. In fact, "Readin' an' Ritin' an' 'Rithmetic" meant nothing to Ronnie last Wednesday. A five-layer cake with candles and all the trimmings was all he could think of all day long.

Marlene Nader and Jeanette Slazes are learning a new little dance that they enjoy very much.
